administration and organization. The selected guide-lines and requirements pretend to produce computer assisted (supported) decision making procedures in these fields in such a way that, at some later time, we can start developing (commercial) packages in the spirit of artificial intelligence, which appears to be one of the basic building blocks of coming information society.

Viljem Rupnik